Starting out with layers Layers are the primary tool of Photoshop, and they serve as the foundation for your image. In fact, Photoshop may be the most logical way to work with media, as layers can be separated as needed for web, print, slide, or whatever. The layer system allows you to work with small pieces in a file, combine them, and arrange them, even as you work on other parts of a file at the same time. When you start a project, you put down a new file and you create a new layer. To manipulate any part of an image, you simply manipulate the layer(s) on top of the layer(s) you want to work on.

You don't really have to worry about proper top to bottom and side to side alignment because the layer system lets you work in 3D space. When creating layers, you place the layer control on the Layers palette and select the Layer control. Use the New Layer button on the bottom-left side of the Layer control to create a new layer. You see the New Layer button shown in Figure 7-4, depending on your platform, along with other tools for Layers. You can also go to Image → Layers from the menu bar and open the Layers palette. Figure 7-4: The Layers palette is located in the Utilities panel. To use layers, you place them on top of one another. You can move, resize, distort, and change any of these properties as you work, and you can name the layers. After you name a layer, you can change the layer type, as I show you in a moment. Q: Enable usage of automatic encoding in TYPO3 7.6.15 I have made use of the new automatic encoding in TYPO3 7.6.15 So I can use the new ckeditor and have the html-validation and Html-encoding in frontend. But how do I enable that for all Inputs/Outputs? I already set up some rules in the TypoScript but it did not work. So what rule is best practice for this? "no autodetect" seems to be a rule, but that does not help for me. Thanks A: Use the {TC EMAIN}ParserConfiguration configuration key. Read more about it in the documentation: Q: unable to create a procedure insert my first record into the database i am having a problem creating a procedure. It is supposed to take a username from the user and insert it into the database as a new user. But it is returning an error saying it cannot find the table i am trying to insert into. This is the code. CREATE OR REPLACE

PROCEDURE insertUsr (v_usr name) AS BEGIN insert into users values(v_usr); END; when i use the procedure on the database directly instead of calling from an oracle application.
