For the first time in its 20-year history, FIFA allows players to control the ball over short distances using both an analogue and a digital stick. Quick switches allow players to change direction quickly using similar movement dynamics to the real thing. Varying shoulder, arm and body weight ratios help make each player look and play like them. The last FIFA game before this one boasted the most realistic collisions and visuals in football history, giving players more realistic handling of the ball. But FIFA 16 didn't break new ground when it comes to ball physics. We've created a next-gen ball for

FIFA on Xbox One and Playstation 4, allowing players to control it in new ways: lift off to get the perfect ball into a tight area, for example, control the speed of the dribble and avoid the tacklers. Additionally, if your player takes a shot on goal, the path of the ball is influenced by the force of the player's foot, so you're less likely to miss. It's about as close to the real thing as you can get. We're not done yet, though. We've created the first-ever "on-the-ball" physics system, which means AI players will take more risks when the ball is at their feet, and can now make off-the-ball runs into their own team's defensive line. This system was built and tested with real-world football matches, and our goal is to bring more unpredictability to on-the-ball challenges, in what we call "Unpredictable Interactions." Everything about FIFA is a work of art. The detail of the surfaces, the matchpads on the players, and the statues, trophies, and banners all look amazing. But that's just the icing on the cake. One of the most powerful changes we've made to FIFA is the Faceshift technology. We've collected data on players' expressions and facial movements, and added new features that help players more naturally and realistically express emotion, like wincing and wincing when you take a heavy blow to the head, or feeling a pinch or pull in a muscle when it's been injured.Q: How can I detect when a form is posted? What's new in Fifa 22:

- Dynamic 3D Player Engagement - a new feature that uses motion capture data from 22 real-life athletes (here's looking at you, Neymar) to animate virtual players in much more detail to reflect the actual movements and style of their real-life counterparts. It's a very technological feat. You can see some of the features in action in our featurette here.
- 3D Stadium Design - FIFA 22 introduces an all-new 3D stadium design. Have you ever wanted to build a stadium that's equally as cool as your team's kit? Embark on the stadium design journey with the new 3D stadium editor. You'll no longer have to hunt down open lot space to find a 2D stadium that's perfect for your dream club.

The stadium design tool has been made even more open and intuitive to allow for ease of use. With an imaginative approach to building an entire stadium in a fraction of the time, create as many stadium styles as you please. Items like fences and CCTV monitors are included as part of the library.

The Impact Engine has been rebuilt for the ground so everything in your stadium will now be "sensitive to the ball's position."

- Dynamic Player Progression & Reallocation +1000 - a new reallocation system has been introduced for Player Progression so now every player starts life at the very top of the ladder. There are additional rewards for reaching the top tier.

Over 1000 players can be added to your squad which means there's never been a better time for the purchasing customisation revolution to kick-off.

- Match Day Live is back for the first time since Season 19 with a host of improvements. Pick your player into your starting XI, boost formation and tactics, send out players to moves, watch full commentary during the game, and instantly score goals when your player scores.

- FIFA 22 pro players include pass ratings for feet, shots, and crosses which can be selectively trained to bring the most out of your favourite players. This addition will help us create more accurate player movements and will be enabled by match day use.
- Shooting - have you ever found yourself uncomfortably close to a great goal but didn't manage to get the ball into the net? You
