I use JSoup to parse the tables. Its worked for other sites that I've run into, but for some reason this time it's not working. It has worked in the past without issue. I just can't figure out what I'm doing wrong. Here is the code that I'm using: public static void main(String[] args) throws IOException { URL websiteUrl = new URL(""); try { Document document = Jsoup.connect(websiteUrl).get(); Elements listing = document.select("#searchBox"); Elements table = document.select("#searchTable"); Elements row = listing.select("tr"); for (Element rowElement : table) { System.out.println("ID: " + rowElement.select("th#phoneNum").text()); System.out.println("Summary: " + rowElement.select("td#qsummary").text()); System.out.println("Bid price: " + rowElement.select("td#bidprice").text()); System.out.println("Bid date: " + rowElement.select("td#biddate").text()); } } catch (IOException e) { e.printStackTrace(); } } A: You are facing CORS (cross-origin request) issue. You can try using another site URL in which there is no CORS issue. URL websiteUrl = new URL("");
