Tusshar Kapoor states, Mastizaade is an honest film with an honest intent. By now, you will realize that the film is all about love, sex and relationships. The intention was to present the problems in society. The film, therefore, did not find an audience because it is extremely unconventional, and people just don't like it. That is what cinema is in a mature country. We as Indians want cinema to be different from the world, not the same. Mastizaade is a mistake. It is a mistake that I made and I am ready to take responsibility for it. I am also in no way trying to tell the industry that this is the way films should be made. All I am saying is that this is the way my films are made and that should be acceptable to the film society. I am ready to work with the censor board and Mastizaade will be made to fit into their code of conduct. I have chosen to release the film without their stipulation and I understand why. But it is still important that it is shown to an audience so that it does not die. This is the only way I will take full responsibility for the film and I hope the public will forgive me. Initially, Milap Zaveri was apprehensive about making a film like Mastizaade as it explored new territory. However, he agreed to make the film as he himself thinks it should be made. The idea of his film was to have an unconventional romance and break the typical norms of Bollywood. Milap Zaveri says, I wanted to make a film that the audience could feel proud of. There were some parts where I did not know where to take the story and what direction to go in. But each day I was working on the film and I felt more contented with it. The only sad part was not being able to show it to people. Tusshar and I gave it a go, but it is a very different film. It is a film that is unconventional, yet also a love story.
